

Rivers of Ireland

A river is large natural stream of fresh water which usually flows into the sea.

The source of a river is
the place where the river starts/rises.

The tributary of a river is a smaller river/stream that flows into the larger river. A tributary does not usually flow directly into the sea.

The confluence is the point at which the tributary and the main river join together.

The mouth of a river is
the place where the river flows into the sea.

A river's course is the route taken by a river from its source to the sea.
