Haiku Poems

Writing Poetry

A Haiku is a traditional three-line Japanese poem with seventeen syllables – five in the first line, seven in the second line and five in the last line. You can say a lot in three lines!

The butterfly's wing does not reveal how very beautiful it is.

All ready – his shirt
is clean but shorts are dirty.
His boots are laced up.

Have a go at writing your own Haiku poems using the three-line structure and following the 5/7/5 syllable structure. You can give your poem a title, if you wish.
