Speaking

A loud

When Speaking Aloud, aim for:

Fluency

This means that your speech should flow easily and with as little hesitation as possible.

When Speaking Aloud, aim for:

Clarity

This means that your voice should be as clear as possible so that your audience can understand what you are saying.

When Speaking Aloud, aim for:

Expression

This means that you are speaking with meaning and putting expression into your voice. You must remember that when you are speaking, you are telling your audience a story.

When Speaking Aloud, aim to be:

Audible

This means that your voice is loud enough for your listeners, both those near to you and those further away, and that you can be heard easily.

When Speaking Aloud, watch your:

Posture

This means that you are standing in a way that allows you to speak with confidence. Feet should be slightly apart, back straight, head and chin up, facing your audience.

When Speaking Aloud, establish:

Eye Contact

This means that your head and chin should be up, facing your audience and not looking at the floor. Establish eye-contact with different parts of your audience.

When Speaking Aloud, make use of:

Pause

This means that you stop at intervals when speaking to make sense of what you are saying, to breathe at an appropriate time and to give your audience an opportunity to reflect on what you have said.
