ANSWERS

Met Éireann said the status red rainfall warning for Connacht, Donegal, Clare and Kerry would expire at 3am on Sunday. Status orange wind warnings for Wexford, Wicklow, Donegal, Galway, Leitrim, Mayo, Sligo, Clare, Cork, Kerry and Waterford were due to expire at the same time, the forecaster said.

"It's pretty nasty. The heaviest of the rain, as expected, is in Connacht, Donegal and west Munster—the Atlantic seaboard counties plus the inland counties of Connacht, and the heaviest of all the rainfall has been in Galway, Mayo and Donegal in the northwest and west," said meteorologist Pat Clarke.

"The good news is that all this rain, all this wind that we have will clear away overnight. Sunday will be a much clearer day, big improvement weather-wise, a lot of dry weather and some sunshine."
