

WHO'S LOOKING?

This is quite a simple and easy art lesson to do, yet it is one which pupils in middle/senior classes will enjoy. It is probably best to do it in two stages, leaving time for paint to dry after the first stage.

1. Place the sheet of art paper in portrait mode.
2. Using the three primary colours (blue, red, yellow), quickly, using forward and backward strokes, (using paintbrush or sponge) paint the background of the page, starting with blue at the top of the page, followed by red and then yellow. Allow the paints to overlap on the page, thereby creating new colours as they mix.
3. Allow this paint to dry.
4. When the background has dried, paint thick black tree silhouettes the length of the page, including outbranches.
5. Draw and cut out bloodshot eyes.
6. Stick on the eyes between the tree branches.
7. Alternatively, pupils could stick on the googly eyes that can be purchased in art suppliers.
8. This is quite an effective lesson to do at Hallowe'en.
